

I travel alot in my Jeep that has Xm radio installed, and when I am in need of weather reports or traffic conditions I can easily switch to what ever major city Im near and get the info I need without having to know the local radio news channel which is makes it safer for me and the people driving on the highway with me since im not fine tuning my digital radio to what station on the local band when I can easily just go to the 210 and take my time pushing my forward button on my remote till I hear the person say what city the channel is for. Also as a native of metro Atlanta I know that the news channels only give weather and traffic info in a timely fashion only during the rush of morning and afternoon and I cant wait till Atlanta is in the lineup. Since it provided my family and I great info while on vacation to Washington D.C. and Baltimore. Thanks for listening - Jeremy Dryden
